

Calgary's southeast community of Quarry Park booming

Several townhouse and condo developments under construction

A southeast neighbourhood in Calgary is quickly becoming the city's newest hotbed for development.

Quarry Park, which is located between Glenmore Trail SE and Barlow Trail SE, is the site of several condo and townhouse developments.

The neighbourhood is also the location of Imperial Oil's new head office.

Some developers say they're already seeing a boom in business.

"Massive increase in web traffic, sales volumes across all products has been very, very good," said Cody Clayton, president of Remington Development.

Many people have also visited the showhomes, which in some cases have translated into sales.

"We have had over a dozen sales in the past 2 weeks, with the excitement in the showhome the buzz that all of this has created...people are really seeing the urgency in buying now, so there's not going to be a shortage once Imperial Oil folks all move in," said Adele Kerr with Birchwood Properties.

The prices range from $400,000 to $1 million.
